

Diversity Commitment

Supplier and employee diversity is an important initiative for many companies and organizations. As a certified minority-owned business, Finline is committed to promoting diversity through contributions and participation in national, regional, and local diversity programs.

Roots

Richard Miller, Owner and President of Finline, was born in Argentina and immigrated to the United States as a young teen. He started Finline with a small SBA loan and strong sales aptitude—30 years ago. Mr. Miller remains active in the day-to-day operations of the successful and ever-evolving company.

Certifications

Finline holds many Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) certifications. An MBE is defined as an organization with at least 51% of ownership in the hands of a minority citizen. Finline's certifications include many states—including Indiana, Wisconsin, New York, Missouri, and Illinois; the City of Indianapolis; and the regional councils of Indiana, South Central Ohio, and New York/New Jersey. These regional certifications are ultimately recognized by the National Minority Supplier Development Council (NMSDC).

If we are not certified in a state or regional area in which you do business, we can easily and quickly become certified given the reciprocal nature of our certifications. Just let us know and we will get the official documentation to support our relationship.

As well, Finline is a founding and active member of the Hispanic Business Council, an arm of the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce.

Finline also awards a $20,000 scholarship to fund a Hispanic student's tuition at Indianapolis-based Cathedral High School. The grant targets students who demonstrate academic ability and community service.
